Few options for Livingston school suscally destroyed the historic output, Judge Carloftis has suggested sing part of the property, the new saing part of the property, the new classroom building as facility which would hooke work release promoter. Morely generated by keeping those presoners could be used to fix up and naintain the rest of the property. But most Livingston residents seemed apposed to that titles, because they don't wan prisoners in their community.

west work and make us associately as make to the courty and host stability.

But he knews how hard it is to come up with $2 million for any project, he also knows how important it is to the Livingston area for the school to be preserved.

The Judge also pointing out that mode seems to wast to consider who will be in charge of the facility one it is completed in the construction of th where, will be banked until some viable solution has been reached. The point is with very few options, people should be willing to give a little to get something many of them so desperagely want; the school property table phasecared. It storat goes back to the old clicks. Teggers can't be choosers.

and go see Tom right away because being out of the country when the mob gathers in Frankfort probably is good for my health. I wonder what the job market is like in Tairania? I malready planning issend briller some seeds so he can see if Molly Helton Sunburst tomators and Vidahia coincing will flourish on the shores of Lake Victoria. The politics sure can't be any worse there shart they are in Kentucky.

good food before gathering around a beautiful tree loaded with gifts to veryone. Now! was with those! loved and their voices were like mis-sic on my cars. When I returned to the most I found other surprise gifts from the restaurant, including a big-row from the restaurant, including a big-row from Pelicia and her and little brother, filled with goodies that all grandmas' sove. Also calls from those far away to spend the holidays with me and so many cards! haven't read them all yet. So, I did have a Merry Christmas.
