

Friends pay tribute to Dr. Orson L. Arvin

When Dr. Orson L. Arvin passed away, Bud and Shirley Cox wanted to do something to keep the doctor's memory alive in the community. So a few months ago, they created a memorial to him and placed it in front of the Rockcastle Hospital Medical Arts Building.

"I had known and admired him since he came to Mt. Vernon," Bud Cox said. "We had a long association and traveled together frequently. He was also my former Sunday school teacher."

Leo Keene, president and CEO of Rockcastle Hospital and Respiratory Care Center, Inc. said hospital employees appreciate the memorial and are pleased that Mr. and Mrs. Cox chose to display it at the hospital.

"He was a well-respected physician and helped many people in the community," Keene said. "I can't think of a better place to pay tribute to him than right here at the hospital where he spent so much of his time."

Arvin was well known in Rockcastle County and around the world. He traveled the globe, many times flying his own plane, to help others in need.

"He flew to Russia to take medical supplies," Cox said. "He loved his patients here, but his dream was mission work. He died doing what he loved."

radio coffee mug, and will have the opportunity to visit the U.K. Emergency Transport Helicopter as well. Special entertainment will feature local musicians, performing a wide array of selections from country and gospel to soft rock, contemporary, and eclectic.

Festivities for the celebration will be headquartered at the Lake Cumberland Medical Arts Building covered parking area and on the building's first floor. This will ensure comfort for attendees regardless of the weather.

A special attraction of the event will be guided tours of the hospital's various departments, where some of the latest technologies can be explored. Guests will be able to examine the cath lab and see CD's of actual procedures, including a virtual reality trip through an artery. Participants will also be able to see a functioning heart via ultrasound techniques and physician demonstrations of the Argon Plasma Coagulator and other specialized equipment in the hospital's endoscopy suites.

"Our hospital tour will give the community an opportunity to see technologies and areas of the hospital not generally open to anyone except physicians, staff, and patients," said Wilson. "We think people will appreciate having an inside look at some of the latest technologies available, and will be impressed that they can find such advanced technology so close to home."

The community gathering will conclude at 12 noon, eastern time with cutting and serving the anniversary cake.

him when he came home from school, or would be sitting beside the road under a big tree when we would return from town. He would follow the truck we were in to the intersection of our road with Highway 80, park himself under a big tree and await our return, sometimes several hours later. When we turned into our dirt road, he would leap to his feet and the wagging of the part of his body that held the stub of a tail was his welcome home to us. Often Rod would hop with the truck, hug Stubby and run with him the mile and a half home. Stubby was just as attached to Mat as he was Rod and went with him on his frequent hikes in the woods. Rod said the other night he often wondered who Stubby thought was his real master, Him or Mat.

Helen is in her second stage of treatment for cancer and is doing and looking well. And, I am feeling at least 50 percent better since my visit with them. A few more visits such as this and I might be able to cook an old-fashioned dinner for them.

P.S. Rodney had a second love when he was a teenager. Stubby came first then the guitar he received for Christmas on his fourteenth birthday.

Lake Cumberland Hospital hosting celebration Saturday

Lake Cumberland Regional Hospital will open its doors to the public for a big Community Celebration on Saturday, June 30th, in commemoration of its 25th Anniversary.

"We are excited about the opportunity to celebrate this milestone with people from throughout our service area," stated Susan Ramsey Wilson, director of marketing and public relations. "We have planned a gathering that will have something for everyone, including health information and services provided by the hospital, along with several community agencies and local physicians."

Included in the health fair will be a number of free screening services, such as blood pressure, oxygen saturation levels, osteoporosis, ADHD, depression, weight, hearing, body fat and lung function. In addition, there will be glucose and cholesterol screenings from 8:00 a.m. until 11:00. Participants are urged to fast from midnight in order to get the most accurate result for those tests.

A breakfast buffet, door prize drawing, and hospital tours will also be included in the morning's activities. Attendees will receive a 25th Anniversary Celebration commemo-
