Constitution Week proclaimed

Mrs. Iris Young and Mrs. Laura Durham, representing the Daughters of the American Revolution, met with County Judge-Executive Buzz Carlolitis to declare September 16-23 as Constitution Week, which coincides with the proclamation each year by the President of the United States.

Carlolitis said, "The United States Constitution was the most liberal document ever written because it clearly distinguished the individual from the established state, it greatly limited the role of government, and it formed the basic concepts of the rights and dignity of man in relationship to his government. While other nations have much older common laws that define the role between the citizen and the state, no other written constitution has lasted as long as that of the United States."

"While we, as Americans, admire and respect national symbols and take pride in them, it is only to the United States Constitution that we can find our last refuge when our individual rights are violated by government. Its words protect us from those who would be tyrants at home, and it is the very foundation of American society. We, as Americans, must be ever vigilant in its protection from those who would abuse their power and authority, and from those who would erode the rights of man."
