War on Domestic Violence

There's no place like home...

There's no place like home...
There's no place like home...
There's no place like home...
safe at home!

safe at home!

We've look and there's no place...
safe at home!

We've look and there's no place like home and click her beels three like home' and click her beels three like home' and click her beels three mess. Our society and culture imply that no matter how bad the world gets, we can always go home to warmth, acceptance, support, love and safety, a place, where we belong. But one out of three women would atter face the world alone than go home.

Domestic Violence changes a home to a dangerous place where the threat, physical and sexual attack, put-downs and the constant threat of violence are aduly occurrence. Experts have like need domestic violence. The methods of establishing composition of the systematic, repetitive infliction of psychological trauma. These methods are designed to instill terror helplessness, to destroy the victum's sense of self in relations to others, and to foster pathological attachment to the perpetrators. (Herman 1992) http://www.state.ky.os/agencies/gov/downio/do/yduma.hum Overtime victims of domestic violence begin to doubt themse-lock, the check of the control over another themse-lock, the check of t victim's low self-esteem added with verbal abuse, threats and violence to verbal abuse, threats and violence to gain power and control over the vic-tim. As many victims have stated, the perperators "Prainwash" then (prainwash then (prainwash) then example, perjectrators wan immost amp reach the child(fern) abusive/violent behavior is appropriate and accept-able in our society. The perpetrator is fishing the perspectators of the perpetrator for the perpetrators of the perspectation for the perspectation of the perspectation of the perspectation of the perspectation section is an able the perspectation of wartimes. However, in domestic vio-lence the person who has created the violent environment is supposed to be the very person to provide love, acceptance and safety. Statistically, the American Medi-cal Association found that "Family violence kills as many women every five years as the tool number of Americans who died in the Vietnam War. (1991) Victims of domestic violence do not deserve to be treated this way! Too many people, adults and chil-dren, in our communities live in daily violence. Domestic Violence is very real and affects all of us. The victims may be our neighbors, family mem-bers, friends, acquaintances, co-work-ess. Or they may attend our church, ets. Or they may attend our church our kid's school attend PTA meetings. The first step to ending domestic violence is to accept that it is happening in our world, our state, our neighborhood and our family. (Under no circumstances am I comparing war and domestic violence other than to show a comparison of how victims of domestic violence describe their situations. I hope that the above does not minimize or country in wara.) - S.L. Michaels For more information about do-
