BEE LICK NEWS

Rain is all you can hear from the farmer now. - Russell Scott is on the sick list. - Misses Annie and Minnie Chappell and Sarah Wren, of Lincoln County, visited their teacher, Mr. W. L. Scott Saturday and Sunday. - W. E. Taylor has grip. - Otis Delaney and wife will leave for Indiana soon. - Chas. Lewis and wife, of Garrard County, spent the holidays with his brother, James Lewis. - Morris Taylor calls very frequently at James Cummins'. He is either a candidate for matrimony or a dear lover of chicken. You know we can't always sometimes tell. - James Lewis visited his mother, Martha Coleman, at Cincinnati last week. - M. E. Owens and James Albright are taking a blacksmithing course from our able smith, John Stringer. - W. L. Scott closed a very successful term of school in Lincoln County on Dec. 31st. His school was among the largest in the county, having a census of 98 pupils of which 93 were enrolled during the term. - Luther Owens contemplates building a dwelling in the near future. - William Scott thinks he is the leading farmer in the section because he began plowing Monday and was the first to utter "gee-haw" at the beginning of the new year. - Lewis Foster and wife, formerly Miss Allie Taylor left for Lancaster Monday where they will make their new home. The entire county wishes them success and happiness. - Miss Doris Reynolds and mother are very feeble at this writing. - It seems that the correspondents from Brodhead and Quail are about to look horns over the R.F.D. By the way, Brodhead accuses Quail of not knowing anything about R.F.D. because he never lived on one. It seems as though the same cat gave Brodhead a scratch. - Rev. Todd failed to fill his regular appointment at Bethel Sunday. - J. M. Reynolds continues selling merchandise, he says, at cost. - Jackson Scott is making an addition to his dwelling. - James Harness got his face badly burned during the holidays by experimenting with powder. - Elbert Abbott has moved from the D. B. Southard residence to his home near Buck Creek. Mr. Abbott taught school in this section.
