I got several souvenirs, as did Stanley at the festival. One souvenir was sage. The Native Americans use sage not only for cooking but to burn in a smudge pot to cleanse from evil spiris, to prepare for a ceremony, or before meditation. They use the leaves before they are ground. Sage is one of the four sacred plants. The others are tobacco, weet grass, and cedar. The sage is used 60 bless an object or a person. In order to do this, one lets the smoke from the burning sage surround the thing to be blessed. This puts a whole new twist to making dressing at Thanksgiving, doesn't it?
