

In Remembrance

Monday we lost a man I have loved and respected and one that I think would do anything for anybody. He was also the type who didn't care to disagree with you. My type of person. Also my father-in-law for many, many years. I know his wife, mother-in-law and children knew what a good person he was. I also know that our side of the family knows what a good person he was as well. He was also a fierce competitor who taught his children and grandchildren many good things. He was also a very good role model for them. Wayne Taylor died on Monday and he left a lot of sad souls. Christine, (his wife) and his children, Jeff (probably my best friend, besides Cindy) and Troy, who I met when he was twelve, are heartbroken, as we all are.

Wayne was so good to his family and he was also a Christian man. This is a short column for a reason.

I can't get through it, but to Christine, Jeff, Cindy, Troy, Flora Mae, Aaron, Megan, Gencie, Lauren, Carrie Beth, Jacob, Logan, Zachary, William, Kenny, Paul, Virginia, Kathleen, Brenda, Natalie, and the rest of the Taylor family especially his dad, Ed. I am compelled to say I'm sorry to family members of a special man.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. on Thursday and visitation is tonight, (Wednesday)

"Day Care"

Mr. Upchurch and the Stewart family are close friends.

Upchurch, who is originally from Albany, owns seven Adult Day Care Centers and plans on opening more.

Julie Allen Branham is the director. Gina Martin Masters is director of patient care and Kathy Riley Hensley is the activities director.

Adult Day Care Centers were created to allow a caretaker to go to his or her job during the day.

The Day Center has personnel to administer medicines, assist in personal care and monitor vital signs.

There is occupational, speech and physical therapy for patients. There are activities for patients, which include range of motion exercises and the center also provides breakfast, lunch and snacks throughout the day.

The local phone number is (606) 256-0595 and the long distance number for referrals is (859) 314-7284.

"Fish Study"

Local anglers are being asked to carefully release any walleye caught that may be carrying a walleye transmitter so it can remain part of the study. Walleye with radio transmitters will have a long antenna wire protruding from its belly.

Should an angler accidentally kill one of these fish, he or she should call Dr. Harrell (EXU) - 859-622-1537 or Dave Dreyes (KDFWR) - 1-800-858-1549 ext. 363 so arrangements can be made to retrieve the radio transmitter. The transmitter will then be re-implanted in another fish.

Mike Lovell, owner of Lovell's Gun Repair on Maple Grove Rd., got this nice 16 point buck in Carter County during the modern gun season.

Cody Mann Robinson from Brodhead killed this six point buck on November 14, 2003. It field dressed 140 lbs.

Stephen Lowery killed this 10 point buck on November 17, 2003 in Jackson County. The buck dressed 205 lbs.

Michael Anthony Lovell, 16, son of Mike and Sharon Lovell, got this 8 point buck in Carter County during the modern gun season.

Department for Public Health urges people to get Flu Shots

Kentucky's flu season is underway, with the state Public Health Laboratory confirming the first two positive influenza cultures yesterday. Last year, the first flu case wasn't confirmed until late January.

The Department for Public Health reported the results to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), which has warned that the flu season may be more severe this year due to the early circulation of a group of influenza viruses that has in previous years caused a lot of people to become ill and to develop complications. The disease kills an average of 36,000 Americans every year.

Public Health Commissioner Dr. Rice Leach urges physicians, hospitals, public health departments and others sponsoring influenza immunizations to make a special effort to see that Kentucky's senior citizens and other persons at high risk of complication from influenza get protected against flu. He is also encouraging flu shots for Kentuckians 50 and over and children who are 6 months through age 23 months.

"It's not too late to get a flu shot to protect yourself and your family from getting sick this year," Dr. Leach said. "It takes about two weeks to develop maximum protection after a flu shot, so we urge people not to delay."

The vaccine is safe and effective, and because the vaccine is made with killed virus it will not give you the flu.

An annual flu shot is recommended for the following groups of people who are at increased risk for serious complications from the flu:

- persons 50 years old and older;
- residents of nursing homes and other long-term care facilities that house persons of any age who have long-term illnesses;

• adults and children over 6 months of age who have chronic heart or lung conditions, including asthma;

• adults and children over 6 months of age who need regular medical care or had to be in a hospital because of metabolic diseases (like diabetes), chronic kidney disease, or weakened immune system (including immune system problems caused by medicine or by infection with human immunodeficiency virus [HIV/AIDS]);

• children and teenagers (aged 6 months to 18 years) who are on long-term aspirin therapy and therefore could develop Reye Syndrome after the flu;

• women who will be more than 3 months pregnant during the flu season; and

• health-care personnel, and care givers and household contacts of those who are high risk.

Because young, otherwise healthy children are at increased risk for influenza-related hospitalization, influenza vaccination of healthy children aged 6-23 months is encouraged when feasible.

Those in the high-risk categories should ask their health care provider about getting a flu shot soon.
